Prince Rupert is situated on the edge of some of the most beautiful coastal wilderness in British Columbia, and best of all, you don't have to fight the crowds to experience it. There are less people here, more animals, bigger, emptier landscapes, and an inclination among those who live here to explore the outdoors as much as possible. Whether it's a great trail to hike, a crazy wildlife encounter, a scenic round of golf, or the latest kayak trip out to one of the islands — adventure is always close by here.
